Cheyenne’s Water-To Know It, Is To Love It

Cheyenne, WY-The City of the Cheyenne Mayor Rick Kaysen has proclaimed May 1 through May 7, 2016 as National Drinking Water Week.

Throughout the week, the City of Cheyenne Board of Public Utilities (BOPU), the American Water Works Association (AWWA) and water community partners will celebrate Drinking Water Week by recognizing the vital role water plays in our daily lives and in the quality of life we enjoy because of it. Focus during National Drinking Water Week will be placed on ways in which water consumers can get to know and value their water supply and local water utility.

Water is a valuable natural resource that safeguards the health of Cheyenne’s residents, protects the community from fires, provides a resource for businesses, contributes to recreational activities, and drives our way of life. “Many people don’t realize that Cheyenne’s drinking water sources come from three mountain ranges-Laramie, Medicine Bow and Sierra Madre along with four water well fields prior to being treated and delivered straight to our communities homes and businesses,” said Dena Egenhoff BOPU’s water conservation manager. “To know your source of drinking water is to love it.”
